CANCERS CAN BE CURED. DR. L. CHASE, (LATE OF PORTLAND), THE CELEBRATED INDIANOPATHY, CANCER & HUMOR DOCTOR, HAVING purchased the residence of H. A. Wood, 54 Hammond Street, Bangor, Maine, would be happy to be consulted by all who are afflicted with Cancers, Cancer Humors, Tumors, Scrofula, Leprosy, Salt Rheum, Fits, Neuralgia, Bronchial Affections, Catarrh, Rheumatism, Sick Headache, Liver Diseases, Female Weaknesses, Piles, Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, Diseases of the Kidneys, Stiff Joints, Gravel, Diabetes, &c., &c. DR. CHASE has practiced in his profession for sixteen years, and in that time has spent two years in Florida and Cuba, for the purpose of gaining a correct knowledge of the most efficient remedies used by the various tribes of Indians of that country, and by great expense has gained many valuable secrets, which have heretofore been unknown to the world. In Cancer he claims superiority over all other Physicians of the age, for he never fails to perform a cure, when taken in a proper stage. It is a mode of curing Cancers is by the application of a plaster, which is strictly vegetable, and will have no effect upon the healthy flesh; and in no case uses a knife, as does Dr. Greene, of Boston. He also boldly asserts that he can tell every individual, their disease and location of their pains, and describe their feelings in almost every case, more minutely than they can possibly themselves. Dr. Chase is not a Clairvoyant, but conducts his examinations on a strictly scientific principle, and will challenge any professed medium for a test examination. Office hours from 9 A.M. to 8 P.M. Examinations free. Office at residence No. 54 Hammond Street. November 7, 1866. dtw

THE MOST POPULAR COOKING STOVE IN NEW ENGLAND. The Model Cook for Wood or Coal. THIS STOVE has now been before the public for five years, and thoroughly tested in all respects, and to say that no stove yet made has given equal satisfaction is speaking within the bounds of truth, while it is no disparagement to other Stoves. THAT THE MODEL COOK will do more work with a given amount of fuel than any other Stove made, is a fixed fact. THE MODEL COOK will do more work for the reason that it has full one-third more oven room than any other stove. Is more economical for the reason that the fire is made between the ovens. No heat is lost. A more peculiar feature of the Model Cook is the addition of a Ventilating Heating Oven so arranged that it can be used separately for roasting, or in connection with the large oven for baking. By this process roasting and baking are entirely separated. This permanent extension gives an additional boiler hole and other room on the top of the stove, while at the same time the stove occupies no more room on the floor than ordinary stoves. In fact THE MODEL COOKS are acknowledged by all who have used them to be THE MOST PERFECT, THE MOST ECONOMICAL, THE MOST CONVENIENT, THE MOST BEAUTIFUL, AND THE Most Durable Stove in the World. THE MODEL COOKS are manufactured at the rate of 5000 per year, and the demand for them is constantly increasing. EVERY MODEL COOK sold, is warranted to give entire satisfaction in all respects, or the stove will be taken back and the full price refunded. This stove is more extensively in use in New England for cooking than any other, and gives the best satisfaction. We are the exclusive agents for this Stove in Bangor, and will be pleased to show it to any who will call. WOOD, BISHOP & CO. 1, 2 and 3 Broad Street. mch 13 dkwlm

Business letters should be addressed to the Publishers, "WHEELER & LYNDE."

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 10, 1867.

Our Foreign Correspondence.

NICE, France, March 4, 1867.

Mr. Editor:

We left Naples on the 21st of February, the day before the explosion of the great powder magazine at Porsillipo, which destroyed so many buildings there, and produced so much alarm at Naples.

We took passage for Leghorn in one of the fine steamers of the Italian Portal Service, a voyage of twenty-six hours, fare $1b each, in gold, after deducting twenty per cent, to which we were entitled on account of our party consisting of more than two.—This is two or three times the price of a similar voyage in the United States, though the boats are much inferior to ours. Prices are low in Europe, but not to travelers.

The aristocratic system of government, gives a tone to everything. Steamboats and railroads have three classes; the third class being cheap, the second class about double the third, and the first class three times that of the third, and travellers, especially with ladies, being obliged to take the first class, the second class generally not being quite so good as those at home; though the second class cars in Germany and Switzerland, and even in France, are good enough for any one, and are more used than the first, even by American travellers who are everywhere noted as the most extravagant of any. Travellers from other countries often complain that the profuseness with which Americans spend money has raised the prices of everything on all the principal lines of travel.—As a general rule, people in the old countries make money slowly and are careful how they spend it. In the United States those who are enterprising and fortunate, often make money rapidly, and feel sure that when it is gone they can make some more.

We found the Mediterranean Sea very smooth and pleasant, though it is rough sometimes and dangerous as the ocean. We were generally within sight of the coast of Italy, which is mountainous, and the adjacent islands are generally naked rocks, but with patches of earth which are highly cultivated and thickly peopled. Such is the character of Elba, where Napoleon was confined after the peace of Fontainbleau, and near whose shores our steamer passed.

Leghorn is a commercial port of considerable importance, having a good deal of commerce with New York and Boston, and, following the character of its business, is rather cosmopolitan than strictly Italian. We took the railroad up the Arno to Pisa where we examined and ascended the celebrated Leaning Tower, which has been called one of the seven wonders of the world. It is a bell tower for the church which stands near it, the bell tower, in former times, having been often a few rods from the church.

It is only 190 feet high; not half the height of many others, but is very beautiful, being built of white marble, and composed of eight stories, each with an exterior colonnade or gallery. It is a round tower, and seems to hold its full size without any taper. The inclination of leaning is said to be fifteen feet, yet it stands perfectly firm, the centre of gravity being still 10 feet within the base. Its leaning position not only makes it a great curiosity, but gives it a grandeur and sublimity, connected with an idea of danger, which does not belong to any erect building of the same dimensions. It is known to have been in this position for the last 600 years and there is some dispute among travellers whether it was originally built so, or was built erect and has settled unevenly. It stands on a sandy soil. The building is now unbroken, and without fracture. If it has moved since it was built, it moved together. Its builder may have made it leaning, to show his skill, and to attract the attention of mankind. The architect might have drawn his plans and had every stone cut at the right bevel, so as to fit perfectly into the building as it now stands.—The main tower and every column which surrounds the eight stories, has the same inclination. So has every stone in the eight floors, and every stone in the winding stairs inclines just as it should, so that no inference can be drawn from the build ng to settle the question whether it was made so, or has leaned all together since by settling most on one side, its construction and the cement which unites the stones, being so perfect as to save it from breaking when it moved.—Most people feel a little nervous when walking round the tower on the floor of the eighth gallery, especially when walking down on the leaning side.

In the cathedral, is a bronze lamp suspended from the roof by a very long chain, the swinging of which, first suggested to Galileo the theory of the pendulum. Near the cathedral is the Baptistry, a round building 158 feet in diameter, and 160 feet high, with a splendid cupola, and finished both outside and in with great beauty and costliness, and used only for the ordinance of baptism. So here are three splendid and most expensive buildings to serve the purpose of one church. The number of persons who use these buildings is probably not greater than the number of those who worship in an ordinary New England meeting house, or in a large school house in the back settlements. Such are the contrasts between Italy and the United States and the external style of the religions which prevail in the two countries.

The Campo Santo or Cemetery, at Pisa, is said to be the first of that style I have before described, consisting of a covered gallery built round a square; on the sides and pillars of which, are inscriptions and paintings, and under which the finest monuments are placed, and thus sheltered from the weather. In this gallery is a very old painting of a class very common in the dark ages, and even continued till recent times, illustrating the theology of the period.

It is a Resurrection, representing the artist's imagination of the state of things on the Day of Judgment. The dead are coming out of their graves and being arranged, some on the right hand and some on the left. A solemn, wise-looking angel, sits at Judge near the top of the painting, and indicates to a fellow-angel who stands below, where to put each man as he comes out of his coffin.—Those on the right hand look bright and smiling, happy and handsome, and are surrounded with graceful objects and graceful drapery. Those on the left look lean, haggard and frightful, and are mixed up with snakes, alligators, and other horrible monsters.

One poor fellow just at the grave, is looking wistfully toward the happy group, [illegible]

Europe. He usually put both his first and his second wife in, as going up on the right side.

In the famous Sistine Chapel, in the Vatican at Rome, Michael Angelo has a last judgment, in which old Charon, with his sleeves rolled up, is represented as having taken a boat load of condemned men over the river Styx, and is trying to make them land in the infernal regions, and as they are not willing to go ashore, he applies his oar to them without ceremony.

I have seen a picture of the bad place, in which a monstrous looking devil is devouring infants. He is chewing up two babies at a time, and the blood is flying in every direction. No doubt the authors of these paintings had a pious object, of warning men to fly from the wrath to come; but I believe they are not in accordance with the theology, and they certainly do not suit the taste, of the present age.

A part of the earth used in this cemetery at Pisa was brought from Jerusalem in fifty gallays, in the year 1228. The ideas and feelings which led to this were in entire conformity to the spirit of the Crusades.

At Pisa we took the cars at Spezzia, a small town surrounded by high mountains, on the Bay of Spezzia, one of the safest and most capacious Bays in the world.

There are now some ships of war there and it will probably become the principal naval station of the new Kingdom of Italy. Here we took a carriage for Genoa, and thence to Nice in France, by what is called the Corniche Road leading through to the mountain region bordering on the Mediterranean Sea, sometimes near the shore, sometimes far above it, and occasionally passing through valleys not within sight of the water. This road is a specimen of the permanency and thoroughness of public works, in a country which has been inhabited for twenty or thirty centuries, where labor is cheap and capital abundant. The wharves and bridges in Europe, even over small streams, are generally of solid split stone masonry, laid in hydraulic cement, and look as if they would stand as long as the mountains. Even the railings of the bridges are of stone, often elegantly wrought. The Churches are usually stone, to the top of the steeple.

The carriage roads are often built with nearly as much expense in deep cutting through mountains, in long and high embankments through valleys, and even in tunnelling through mountains, as are our railroads in the United States.

This is particularly the case with the Simplon road, which Napoleon built from the valley of the Rhone, in Switzerland, over the Alps, at the Simplon pass, to Milan in Italy, along which we travelled last Summer. A very gentle grade is adopted such that a pair of horses can haul a heavy load, and in order not to exceed that grade, the road winds up the sides of the mountains in numerous zig zags, and valleys are filled up and mountains of rocks cut through. The road is often cut half into the side of the mountain, the lower part being built on a permanent wall, which is carried up so as to make it a safe railing. In several places the road is protected by covered galleries, or long brick arches, to save the teams from being swept away by avalanches, and a smart mountain stream from a glacier runs over one of these arches.

This road, in descending on the Italian side, goes through the Pass of Gondo, a sort of crack in the mountain, from one to forty rods wide, and two thousand feet deep. The Veterino mounts one wheel on, to an iron shoe and puts on the brakes, and cracks his whip at his horses, and takes one down through it at a smart trot, passing from side to side of a torrent, now plunging through a tunnel, and then by the foot of a cataract, for six or eight miles, till one is glad to get out into the sunshine, where the valley widens and the scenery softens.

The road from Lake Como, over the Splugen Pass into the valley of the Rhine, and through the Via Mala, to Coire, is quite as remarkable and as expensive as that built by Napoleon.

These roads are very wide, and are all macadamized and kept in perfect repair.

In passing along one of those great roads, a man feels that there is something morally sublime in such a work, made not for the builders alone, but for all the generations of men in the far future. If the Author of Nature desires the happiness of his creatures, but has left man surrounded with difficulties that he may perfect his nature by overcoming them, it would seem that he must look with approbation upon those who disinterestedly devote themselves to such great works. Though there are great variaties of scenery in this five days journey round the northeastern part of the Mediterranean, yet it has a general character.

Wire and oil seem to be the principal or leading products. The olive tree is an evergreen, and may be said to cover the whole country, except the barren mountains where a small scrubby pine clings to the rocks. The grass and winter grains are green so the country, though it is early spring here, looks like June to an American.

The olive tree in this region is not generally so large as our apple trees though on the Alban hills near Tivoli, twenty miles from Rome, it is much larger. It has a small leaf resembling that of our willow both in form and color. The foliage is thin, so that enough of the burning sunlight of this climate passes through it, to bring forward and ripen the grains, grapes or vegetables, everywhere growing in the olive orchards.

At a distance the mountains seem to be covered with a native forest, but on looking carefully you see that the growth is too even and regular for nature. As your road winds up the side of the mountain you find it is all cut into terraces. If the slope is forty-five degrees a wall is built eight feet high, and thus a level strip of earth is obtained eight feet wide, on which is planted a row of olive trees eight feet apart, with a grape vine at the foot of each, the vine running up the tree, and grain growing under the trees, so the same land furnishes bread, oil and wine. These terraces rise one above another from the base to the summit of the mountain. In most cases the rocks for the wall are dug out of the hill in making the terraces, and there is earth enough for the trees. If not either the rocks or the earth required are hauled or brought by men from the nearest place where they can be found. Where the mountains are mostly ledge, every place where it is possible to make land in this way is so saved. If the slope of the mountain is less, the walls of the terraces are lower, and the strips of land wider. If the slope is gentle the wall is not needed, and the lower part of the terrace is grass.

The orange groves are now loaded with ripe fruit, but they are not gathered yet, [illegible] along like Italians, but step as quick as in Boston, especially about the wharves. The nobility are said to have retained their ancient wealth more than in any other Italian city. They throw open their splendid palaces to the traveller with great liberality, where the wealth and family pride of many generations, under the guidance of genius and taste, have accumulated the choicest works of art.

The gardens of some of the villas or country seats, in the vicinity, are still more charming than the palaces.

The Philadelphia Press says there is a rumor, not without foundation, that Great Britain has refused to consent to the arbitration of the Alabama claims, unless the United States agree to surrender certain important international principles to which she has always adhered.

PENALTY FOR OPENING LETTERS. In the New York Assembly a bill has been introduced to punish by a fine of three hundred dollars, and imprisonment not less than three months, any person opening any sealed letter or telegraph message not addressed to him.

One singular fact in connect on with the death of Mr. Lincoln is, that no coroner's inquest was ever held on his body; no legal evidence taken as to the manner of his death, nor was a single person, accused of connection with it, ever brought into a court of law; nor is there to this day any legal testimony whatever as to the manner of his death, the cause of it, or who killed him.

The Tennessee Democrats resolutely opposed the franchise law passed by the Legislature; but, now that the election of Governor approaches, they have discovered the virtues of the negro, and endeavor to induce him to accept the honor of being a delegate to their Conventions. The Tribune says the colored gentlemen do not seek honor in that direction, and at the recent Convention in Nashville not one could be persuaded to assist.

The New York World was one of the foremost to stimulate the great riots of 1863 against the negroes, but it now says:

As a race the negroes of New York, considered from a police point of view, are a better class of citizens than the lower grades of whites.

And it adds:

As regards the popular notion of the odor of the negro, it may be positively stated that he, in this respect, is like the white—a clean negro being free from it, and a foul one cursed by it.

Here is progress. Perhaps if we should say that the World regards a negro with a vote as sweet-smelling, while one without a vote is unendurable, we should not be far out of the way.

Remarkable results of the Republican revolution are happening out south. The dainty rebels are beginning to acknowledge to themselves that they must enter for the votes of the once despised "niggers", if they are to hope for any political power hereafter. Thus, the aristocratic Richmond Whig holds its gloved hand to its nose and says:

Unpleasant as it is to engage in political conflicts, especially to struggle for a vote never before cast, and not rated very high in respect of intelligence and fitness, there are things that we may find much more unpleasant.

What can be more unpleasant than for "gentlemen" to go into Cuffee's cabin and ask for negro votes!

DR. LIVINGSTONE. Rev. Dr. David Livingstone was born at Blantyre, upon the banks of the Clyde, near Glasgow, in 1817. As a youth he earned his livelihood in the cotton mills of Blantyre, but by hard labor he was enabled to pursue, during the winter months, his studies at Glasgow. As he grew up he resolved to devote himself to the life of a missionary, hoping that Africa or China would be the scene of his labors. After studying medicine and theology, he offered his services, in 1838, to the London Missionary Society and was accepted. He reached the shores of Africa in the summer of 1840. For sixteen years (1840-56) he labored at various stations in South Africa.—In 1855 the Royal Geographical Society of Eng and conferred upon him the Victoria or Patron's gold medal. In the same year Dr. Livingstone successfully made a journey across Southern Africa. He visited England in 1856, and met with a magnificent reception. In 1858 he went to Africa and continued his geographical explorations.

Connecticut has given joy to at least one Southern heart, and the Wilmington (N.C.) Dispatch, one of the most bitter of rebel papers, thus exults in the triumph of its friends: "Connecticut, gallant, glorious, immortal Connecticut, has spoken. The hold of despotism is being loosened. The great reaction has commenced. The dark hour that immediately precedes the dawn has been upon us; but now the east is all aglow with the golden tints of the coming morn. Democratic constancy to the principles of the Constitution is commencing at last to yield its fruits; and to the ear of despair come whisperings of hope and gladness. Buckle on your armors, Democrats of America, unsheathe your blades, and rush to the combat. Freedom, in the clutches of the tyrant, shrieking, calls you to her rescue. Lured on by promises that the fabric of constitutional law may be preserved through your championship, let your peerless valor attest your devoted zeal; and, triumphant, wring from the unwilling hands of the usurper the meed of Republican Independence." It then gives the Democrats the appalling advice to "plunge into the very throat of disaster, and reclaim for yourselves and posterity the heritage which your ancestors bequeathed" and winds up by declaring that "the Democrats of Connecticut are the best in the world!" This may be true, but then we are sorry for the rest.

TO THE PUBLIC.

The marked favor and extended use which have signalized the introduction of MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S Preparations for the Hair, throughout Europe, together with the immense sale they have had for over 30 years in America, has enabled the manufacturer to experiment and improve.

To supply a superior preparation, at a low price is no easy task, but through recent discoveries both have been accomplished. Mrs. ALLEN has heretofore manufactured three preparations, put up in three different bottles; to combine successfully the three in one preparation, in one bottle, has been the study of years. It has been accomplished and the beautiful effect by this New Preparation in quickly changing Gray, White or Faded Hair to its Natural Color and Beauty, inducing New Growth, &c., &c., has gained for it hosts of friends, and is now regarded as a household necessity. The Improved Preparation is now the Hair Dressing as well as Hair Restorer.

The manufacturer, satisfied with the very much increased sale that the preparation is now having, is resolved to give the public their share of the discovery, and the retail price is from and after this time

Reduced to One Dollar per Bottle.

The size of the bottle will remain same as heretofore, with an entirely different wrapper of elegant design, and printed on white paper.

NOTICE.—At the earnest solicitation of many old patrons I will continue to manufacture my Zylobalsamum same in every respect as the old preparation by that name, but the use is not confined, as formerly, by with my Restorer. The price of the Zylobalsamum remains same as heretofore, Seventy-five cents per Bottle.

Imperfect Eye-Sight Restored.
BANGOR, April 4, 1867.
I take this method to express my gratitude to Dr. J. M. Jennings for the successful treatment of one of my son's eyes. About one year ago one of his eyes was pierced with an arrow, and from its effect produced an internal cataract which had nearly destroyed its sight; so much so that he could scarcely discover any object with it. I had nearly or quite given up all hopes of its ever being restored.—Learning that the Dr. was stopping at the Bangor House, I called upon him with my son, and he examined the eye, and said he could give us much of any encouragement, but on certain conditions would make a trial. It is but one week today since I placed him under his treatment, and am happy to say that he has succeeded in restoring his sight beyond all my expectations; the eye was very weak before. It is now gaining strength every day, with a fair prospect of permanent help. The treatment is simple and harmless but effectual. I would earnestly recommend all afflicted with diseases of the eye in any form, to employ him without fail.

FEAR REASON
STRENGTHEN THE DEFENSES!
When a garrison apprehends an attack from an outside enemy, what does it do? It STRENGTHENS ITS DEFENCES. The human system, at this period of the year, is beleaguered by morbid influences.—The atmosphere is full of them. Every change of weather lays the feeble open to their attacks. What is to be done in order to baffle these unseen, but ever active, foes? STRENGTHEN THE DEFENCES.—Do you ask how? The answer is simple—the means within the reach of all: Reinforce the vital organs and the nervous system with HOSTETTER'S BITTERS. Tone the stomach, regulate the bowels, rouse the sluggish liver, cheer the spirits, enrich and purify the vital current, with HOSTETTER'S BITTERS. That's the way to STRENGTHEN THE DEFENCES, and render the capital of health impregnable. If you wish to escape bilious head-ache, intermittent fever, indigestion, and nervous visitations—to enjoy, in all its plenitude, the blessings of "a sound mind in a sound body," use this incomparable preventive and restorative. It preserves health in the healthy, and renews it in the weak and ailing. apr 2 sn&tawd&w 2w

DR. SCHENCK'S
NEW OFFICE.
DR. J. H. SCHENCK, of Philadelphia, has opened an office on second floor of No. 35 HANOVER STREET, Boston, where he will be professionally every WEDNESDAY, from 9 to 3. Every person needing his services, or any disease lead-ing with Consumption or any disease lead-ing to it, is invited to call on him. He gives advice free, but for a thorough examination with his Respirometer the charge is five dollars.
Dr. Schenck can explain to patients very correctly the state of their disease, and he does use his medicines, namely, his Pulmonic Syrup, Seaweed Tonic, and Mandrake Pills, without the use of the Respirometer; but by it he can tell exactly how far the disease has gone, and what part also; whether it is Tuberculous, Pulmonic, Bronchial or Dyspeptic Consumption, or whether it is merely an ulcerated throat, ulcerated stomach, or Foul Liver Complaint.
His patients have full directions so any one can take them without seeing him, but if they live near they usually prefer to see him. All who wish to see him can do so free of charge at his office, No. 35 Hanover Street, Boston, every Wednesday. Dr. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup is a sovereign remedy for Consumption, Liver Complaint, and all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, and is a specific for those dreadful night sweats, which are kept up by the hectic cough, and which so rapidly reduce the patient to the last stage of consumption. Dr. Schenck's Seaweed Tonic is a sovereign remedy for Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Debility, Dizziness, Cold Feet, Cold Hands, Night Sweats, Nervous Fevers, Nervous Headache, Nervous Prostration, and all diseases where a tonic is required. The Mandrake Pills are a mild but sure cathartic, and are to be used when the system is bilious, or when the liver is torpid, or when there is costiveness, or when there is a tendency to Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Dizziness, Headache,

Fortieth Congress.

EXTRA SESSION.

WASHINGTON, April 8.

Senate

Mr. Trumbull introduced a resolution which was adopted, directing the Secretary of War to furnish to the Senate a list of the names of volunteer officers now in the service of the government, their rank and particular duties assigned to them; that he inform the Senate under what law they are retained, and whether some of them may not be dispensed with without detriment to the public service.

Mr. Anthony offered a resolution proposing a new rule that all resolutions calling on departments for information shall be referred to one of the standing committees to inquire into the probable cost of furnishing the required information.

Mr. Thayer said it would be recollected that during the last session of the 39th Congress, a Senator from Ohio (Wade) offered a resolution making inquiry of the President of the United States, in regard to the absence of Alexander Cummings, of Colorado, from that territory, and how long he had been absent. That resolution was modified before it was passed, so as to call for information regarding the absence of other territorial officers from their posts of duty.

Mr. Thayer stated he would now inquire whether any response has been received to that resolution.

The Chair replied that no replies had been received.

Mr. Thayer offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the President be requested to inform the Senate if when Alexander Cummings was appointed Governor of Colorado Territory; how much time the said Cummings has been absent from the Territory since his appointment, and whether by permission, and whether on public business or not, and whether his salary has been paid him during his absence or not, and how much has been paid to him as salary for the time he has been absent from the Territory.

Mr. Thayer said he had been informed by a gentleman who had opportunity of knowing the fact, that Gov. Cummings, who was appointed Governor less than two years ago, had been absent from the Territory eight months during that time. He was now absent, having been here some four months.—He, therefore, regarded it as his duty to bring this case to the not co of the Senate.—He knew judges of the territories to be absent year after year and to go out to them now and then as if it were a pleasure trip.—Such absences have become so habitual as to require the interposition of Congress.

Mr. Buckalew desired that the resolution go over until to-morrow. He should regret to have the resolution passed and the Senate adjourn without response from the President and with an ex parte statement of the Senate before the country. They were explanations to be given as far as Gov. Cummings present absence is concerned.

The Senate then went into executive session.

Democratic eyes are opening widely at sundry developments at the South. For instance, Gov. Orr of South Carolina, in a recent speech, referring to the Northern Democratic party, said: "We have accounts to settle with that party, gentlemen, before I, at least, will consent to affiliate with it." The audience responded with emphasis, "Good," "good!" and he continued:

"Many of you well remember that when the war first commenced, great hopes and expectations were held out by our friends in the North and West that there would be no war, and that if it commenced it would be north of Mason's and Dixon's line, and not in the South. You know, sir, (turning to General Sickles,) that faith was pledged, and I will now state that if that faith had been properly carried out, there is no probability that any State but South Carolina would have seceded from the Federal Union.—Again, during the pendency of the Constitutional Amendment, every Northern newspaper and almost every Democrat in the country urged upon the South to reject its provisions. It was rejected. A few weeks elapsed, and yet we find that on the passage of this Sherman bill, our Democratic friends, acting in conjunction with old Thad Stevens, were instrumental in incorporating on that bill its most odious features. It went back to the Senate, was finally adopted, and every one of the Democratic newspapers, all over the North, so far as I am informed, have come out and urged the Southern people to accept the bill. I say to you, therefore, that in my judgment, it is time for us to seek new friends and a new alliance."

WASHINGTON, April 8.

The Senate devoted nearly all of its to-day's session to the consideration of the Russian treaty, which was favorably reported back by the Committee on Foreign Relations. Inasmuch as in presenting the report of the Committee, quite few have been at the Senate, during which time he information concerning the proposed acquisition. His remarks naturally had their effect, but the ratification of the treaty is regarded as certain. There is some outside opposition to the treaty from the party, who remember the value of money, and have to secure the payment of the Revolutionary debt, and who also argue that the territory in question have not now been peopled, "it is an expense of their Government to protect" by their presence, before it is worth, commercially, anything to us. It is the public opinion, we believe, is in favor of the ratification of the treaty. The motion of Mr. Sumner will result at the proper time in a resolution of the Senate to resume the consideration of this treaty.

The nomination of Gen. Geo.

LOCAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

Grand Lodge of Good Templars.

The annual session of the Grand Lodge of Good Templars of Maine was commenced in this city yesterday, at City Hall, and will continue two days. The members of the Lodge here had an informal meeting Monday evening to receive the representatives and visitors from abroad. Mayor Wakefield presided, and, in a few brief and pertinent remarks, welcomed them to the city, and introduced them to an abundant collation furnished, by the ladies of Floral and Union Lodges.

The Grand Lodge met at 9 A. M., the Grand Worthy Chief in the Chair.

The following officers were present and appointed:

E. A. Sawyer, G. W. C. T.
E. R. Taylor, G. W. C.
Alice Hawkes, G. W. V. T.
E. W. Hutchinson, G. W. Chap.
F. G. Rich, G. W. S.
G. F. Towne, G. W. T.
E. Bucknel, G. W. M.
Amanda True, G. W. D. M.
A. L. Wormwood, G. W. I. G.
—— Frost, G. W. O. G.
C. L. Nichols, P. G. W. C. T.

Forenoon Session.

Representatives and Alternates obligated, and nearly two hundred members initiated into the Grand Lodge.

Voted, That the morning sessions commence at 9 A. M., afternoon at 2 P. M., and evening at 7 P. M.

Reports of Grand Officers read, adopted and referred to appropriate committees.

The Secretary reports 247 Lodges in working order, and upwards of 24,000 members; also $4,000 available funds in the treasury.

After appointing committees on appeals, legislation, nomination of officers and appropriation, the Lodge adjourned till the afternoon session.

Afternoon Session.

Opened in Grand Lodge Degree; closed and opened in Subordinate Degree.

The session was almost wholly occupied in the election of Grand Officers, with the following result:

G. W. C. T.—Nelson Dingley, Jr., Lewiston.
G. W. C.—H. J. Woods, Belfast.
G. W. V. T.—Amanda True, Appleton.
G. W. S.—F. G. Rich, Portland.
G. W. T.—J. L. Towne, Waterville.
G. W. Chaplain—G. Pratt, Rockland.
G. W. M.—J. H. James, Bangor.
G. W. D. M.—Augusta Titcomb, Portland.
G. W. I. G.—Persis Kittredge, ——
G. W. O. G.—L. C. Call, Kittery.

The following were elected to the Right Worthy Grand Lodge of North America:

Representatives—E. A. Sawyer, J. O. Winship, Joshua Nye, E. Leach.

Alternates—H. J. Woods, S. C. Archer, O. A. Farwell, G. Pratt.

The vote on place of holding the next semi-annual session was decided in favor of Biddeford in October.

Evening Session.

The evening was occupied with the ceremony of installation of officers, and short speeches on the good of the order.

A very pleasant circumstance attending the outgoing of the old officers was the presentation of a silver service to the retiring presiding officer. The service was presented by the officers and members of the Grand Lodge, and the presentation and reception speeches were very prettily made.

Remarks upon subjects pertaining to the temperance cause were made by Bros. Pratt, Woodbury, Nye, Rich, Ellis, Winship, Dow, Montgomery, Adams, Hutchinson, Farwell and others.

Adjourned with singing the Doxology.

There will be a public meeting at the Hall to-night, to which all friends of temperance are invited.

OUR SIDEWALKS. In referring yesterday to the need of a new system of sidewalks in our city, we omitted to say (what, we should have said) that Mayor Wakefield, in his able Inaugural Address of this year, brought the subject forcibly to the attention of the City Council. He said:

"The labors of the Street Commissioner have been very arduous. His duties were greatly increased in consequence of the construction of more than one mile of sewers in the streets. In replacing the dirt taken out for the laying of the sewers, several fillings were necessary, as the dirt from time to time settled. After the streets were leveled up, and had become solid, they were covered with a layer of gravel. Ohio and part of Court streets, and several sidewalks were also graveled.

"Several permanent stone culverts have been made, and granite crossings been made on a number of streets, to accommodate foot passengers.

"It gives me great pleasure to state, that I believe the Commissioner has been diligent and faithful in the discharge of his duties, and that though there were calls on his department not anticipated at the commencement of the year, he has kept within his appropriations.

"A concrete sidewalk, composed of coal tar, small stones, coarse and fine gravel, was made on the north side of State street, between French street and Broadway, and contains —— square yards. It was laid as an experiment by the owner or agent of the patent. The city furnished part of the materials and of the labor. Estimating the materials and labor at their market values, it cost forty cents a square. It makes a fine walk, and appears to be in fine condition this spring. It is said to have been laid extensively in several cities; but I have not sufficient experience and knowledge on the subject to commend it for adoption for general use instead of brick. Let me suggest that it is time to encourage the construction of permanent sidewalks. There are several streets in the city as thickly settled that the cost to the owners of the lots in making permanent walks would not be great. The city would furnish curb-stones, and very likely sand or gravel.

"We find that there is a city ordinance already in force upon the subject of sidewalks, providing that a large portion of the expense of permanent walks will be borne by the city, and we see no reason why the people should not take advantage of it and do something themselves, as we have suggested, towards establishing a new condition of things."

[The Street Commissioner is authorized to lay down edge or curb stones, for sidewalks, on all streets that are, or shall be graded; provided, the owners of land on said streets will complete the sidewalks, to the acceptance of the Commissioner.] The city government of last year spent a large sum for permanent improvements—more in fact than has been before spent in any one year, viz—for new sewers, $12,000—on a new engine house, new reservoir, etc., about $20,000—and other improvements some $4000. Little money could in fact be spared last year for permanent improvements. [illegible] hope that [illegible] the City [illegible]

To the Editor of the Daily Whig:

I notice going the rounds specification of the number of vessels building in the various localities of Maine, especially East of this place and nearly all the towns and towns west of here are placed in the category. These statements are, I believe, mostly quoted from the Portland papers. Undoubtedly the author means well; only desires to place this branch of Maine's industry in as favorable a light as possible. Of this, none would wish to complain, as the motive is good. Still overdrawing the actual current state of the case, especially at this time, can but result in harm. That Maine Shipbuilding is overcharged, depressed and non-remunerative, is too patent to be for a moment overlooked by a practical eye, the statements referred to to the contrary notwithstanding. But the same amount of error that has crept into the reports from Stockton, is to be found in the reports from all the towns, the impressions given are wide of the mark. For instance, in Stockton, the report has it:

"Stowers & Staples of Sandy Point, are building a schooner of 150 tons, to be off this spring.

"Messrs. Mudgett & Colcord of Stockton are building two schooners of 250 tons, to be off the spring, and, have two frames to be off this fall.

"N. G. Hichborn, Esq., of Stockton, will launch a fine bark of 600 tons this spring, and will build another of the same size to be off this fall.

"C. F. Flatcher of Stockton, has frames in his yard for a bark and a schooner, which he contemplates building this season.

"Henry Staples of Stockton, is building two schooners of 200 tons each, to be off this spring and fall."

The facts are, N. G. Hichborn is building no vessel at all, nor has he built any for some years. Master John Littlefield, who has charge of Mr. Hichborn's yard, got two frames in to the yard last year, put one of them on the stocks, where it now remains and will remain until some relief can be had. The other, he set up about half finished, and discharged his crew. He may or may not, finish her this season. She cannot be launched and launched and money not be lost.

C. S. Fletcher & Co., have simply two frames in his yard neither of which he expects to build this season.

S. Staples is building a schooner of about 185 tons. He has another small frame in his yard.

Messrs. Mudgett, Libby and Griffin are building a brig of about 450 tons, and will do no more until some relief is had.

Messrs. Colcord & Mudgett are building a schooner of about 220 tons, and are to stop at that until they can build on remunerative prices.

B. F. Rice & Co. have on the stocks one schooner and will build no more this year.

Captain Alex. Black will build none this year—has made no preparations.

Messrs. Stowers & Staples are building a schooner of 120 tons, for coasting purposes, and will rest there.

It will be noticed that these vessels are all of a small class, making no great amount of aggregate tonnage. So I think it is all over the State.

The demand for coasting vessels for the past two or three years has stimulated the building of these small vessels hoping thereby to keep the ship yards partially at work upon a class of tonnage on which there would not be ruinous losses.

This year, even this branch of the business will be over-stocked. Such, at least, I feel must be the case.

Stockton, April 8, 1867.

HOW FISHERMEN CAN OBTAIN SALT FREE OF DUTY. We have received for publication the following letter from Collector Dovereux of Castine:

CUSTOM HOUSE,
District of Castine,
Castine, April 7, 1867.

The law of July 28, 1866, which repealed all laws, allowing fishing bounties, provides "That vessels licensed to engage in the fisheries, may take on board imported salt in bond, to be used in curing fish, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe, and upon proof that said salt has been used in curing fish, the duties on the same, shall be remitted."

The regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury require that fishermen, to avail themselves of the privilege of obtaining salt free from duties, must go to a bonded warehouse, where, the importer or owner of salt will make a drawback entry for the amount of salt wanted to be taken on board, giving to the Collector of Customs his bond with sufficient sureties, in a sum equal to the full value of the salt required for the voyage, that the said salt shall be actually used in curing fish on board the said vessel, and shall not be re-landed in the United States without proper entry and payment of duty, at the port of withdrawal.

In order to cancel the above mentioned bond for salt withdrawn from warehouse, for the benefit of drawback, the following proof must be presented to the Collector of Customs, at the port of withdrawal, on or before the first day of January next after the date of the bond, viz:—The oath of the Captain and at least one other person who shall have been employed in the vessel during the fishing voyage, on which it may be alleged that the salt was used, stating the quantity of fish caught and cured, and the quantity of salt used in curing them. If this evidence proves satisfactory to the Collector, he will compute the quantity of salt used, and deduct it from the quantity shipped, and on payment of the duty on the balance of the salt, if any, he will cancel the bond, by entering upon it the facts as ascertained.

In case of failure to present satisfactory proof to the Collector of the cancellation of the bond, on or before the 1st day of January next after the date of the bond, it will be handed to the District Attorney for collection.

Fishermen purchasing their salt outside of a bonded warehouse, are not entitled to the benefit of drawback.

B. F. DAVEREUX, Collector.

[We understand that the stores of Messrs. Wetherbee & Co., and Samuel Adams, in Castine, have been constituted bonded warehouses, by the Secretary of the Treasury, for the purpose of supplying salt to fishermen, and that a cargo is now on the way from Liverpool for that purpose. Fishermen on Cape Cod and river will thus avoid the necessity of going to Portland or Boston for their supply.

—The weather here is rather cool and the snow in the woods goes off moderately and favorably. The season has been and is very forward so far, but hearing, and the news will be soon [illegible] the business.

Change of Time.—On and after Monday next, April 15, the passenger trains meet on the Maine Centre will leave at 7:20 A. M., and arrive at Danville Junction at 12:30 P. M. Train east will arrive here at 3 P. M. Accommodation freight leaves Bangor at 2:15 P. M.; arrives at Bangor 10:00 A. M.

On the Bangor Oldtown & Milford road, trains (on and after the 15th) leave Bangor at 6 and 11:30 A. M. and 5:15 P. M.—Milford at 7:15 A. M., and 1:45 and 6:15 P. M.; Oldtown at 7:50 A. M., and 2 and 6:00 P. M.

—In Police Court Monday, D. W. Garland & Co., were fined $20 and costs on search and seizure. Paid. Liquors forfeited.

William H. Chase, search and seizure, fined $20 and costs. Paid. Liquors forfeited.

Yesterday, Daniel McAulay and Daniel Madison, on search and seizure were fined $25. Liquors forfeited.

REAL ESTATE SALE. Mr. John Patten has purchased of Mr. Michael Schwartz his house and grounds corner of State and Grove Streets. Price $7000.

—In the list of American arrivals at Paris, for the week ending March 22, we notice the names of Hon. H. B. Prentiss and S. A. Prentiss, of this city.

—There were eight arrests for drunkenness in Portland on Saturday night. Bangor can show a much cleaner record.

—We see that our old friend John Bridges of Castine, is among the appointees on the new Capitol Police (a temperance police, by the way,) at Washington. He is appointed Superintendent of the Crypt.

—The Portland bricklayers demand $4 per day for first class workmen; good $5.50; ordinary, $3; inferior, $2. Rather difficult to brand all the grades precisely, we should think.

—Thieves are getting bold in Portland. Last week they robbed a clothes line or Cedar street of its contents; and on the same street a man was found under the bed, but got off before he could be secured.

—Mr. Andrew Hooper of Machias a crippled soldier, lost a team horse, his chief means of support, by accident the other day, when some of the generous citizens of that town contributed quite a sum to enable him to purchase another.

—The Ticonic Company, which purposes to improve the water power at Waterville, on a large scale, has recently purchased the Redington Mill, at that place, for $4,000.

—The Postmaster of Portland has orders to increase clerk's salaries of $1000 and over ten per cent.; those below that twenty per cent.

—A farmer in Farmington has sold this year $500 worth of dried apple, and another made last year two tons of maple sugar.

—The Third Parish of Portland will build a new church on the old lot.

—Machias sold $2000 worth of liquor last year, at her agency.

—The milkmen of Lewiston now sell their fluid at 7 cents per quart.

—Ham is not popular in Springfield just now.

"Then there's that old Lord Maurice, not a whit more tame for his grey hairs."

Nor probably not a whit more good looking. Grey hairs may be becoming in extreme old age, but they do not add to the attractiveness of the young and middle aged. "Barrett's Vegetable Hair Restorative never fails to restore grey hair to its original color."

A Washington dispatch says that unless the white voters of that city turn out at once and offer themselves for registration, the Republican candidates are sure to be elected next June; so far, the blacks outnumber the whites.

BOSTON, Feb'y 20th, 1867.

To the Editor of the Bangor Whig, Bangor, Maine.

DEAR SIR:—Understanding from reliable sources that parties in your section of country are reporting as having the Agency or right to dispose of our Patent for the manufacture of Bark Extract, I am induced to write you to contradict any such impression. Our Association have their process for extracting the valuable qualities of Bark patented in Canada, New Brunswick, and the United States, and have the EXCLUSIVE right to manufacture in those countries. They have never given authority to any party to dispose of rights, and any party purporting to have such authority is imposing upon the community. The works of the Association are located in Canada, and any party wishing information regarding them can obtain the same upon application to W. E. PLUMMER, 63 Merchants Exchange Boston, Agent of Miller's Patent Bark Extract Association.

P.S.—The Extract of our manufacture has entirely superseded that of any other process, and we can show the testimonials of nearly all the Tanners in Massachusetts to substantiate the truth of our assertion.

Hoyt's Luminating Oil.
A New Yorker's praise Oil.—The best and safest oil for burning in the household, is the new Illuminating Oil, secured to Mr. Edwin Hoyt, of Stamford, by express filed at Washington. Its advantages over kerosene are obvious enough; and those who are accustomed to burn kerosene will be glad to know that they will no longer be exposed to danger by its explosive nature. The new oil has neither smoke nor does it emit a disagreeable odor, and will give a more brilliant light than any other known chemical. We have seen it in use and would recommend some enterprising man to purchase the right for this vicinity.—Bridgeport Standard.

This is to certify that I have this day tested a sample of "Hoyt's Improved Illuminating Oil." The Oil was treated as in all other trials which I have made of similar substances.
At 110° flame was applied to the mouth of the tube, but there was not sufficient evolution of vapor to support combustion. At 150° the fluid was boiling, and the vapors burned tranquilly and gently.
The result of this test would indicate that the Oil in question is a safe preparation for use in families for household illumination.

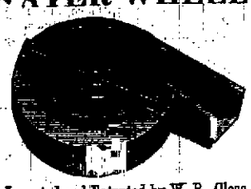
Notice to Mill Owners and Millwrights.
Improved Lever Pressure Centre-Vent.
ECONOMIZING
WATER WHEEL!


Invented and Patented by W. B. Close,
BANGOR, MAINE.
THE Subscribers would ask the attention of Mill Owners, and others interested in Water Wheels to their Patent Centre Vent Wheels, manufactured at T. N. Egery's Foundry.
The great demand for these wheels have made it necessary for the proprietors to add several more sizes to their former list, and their arrangements are now such that they can generally fill an order in one day after it is received.
We claim superiority over other Wheels for various reasons, the chief of which is the economical use of Water. Trials of these Wheels the past season have demonstrated the fact that they will do the same work with one-half the water required for any other Wheel used on the Penobscot River.
The great demand for these wheels have made it necessary for the proprietors to add several more sizes to their former list, and their arrangements are now such that they can generally fill an order in one day after it is received.
We claim superiority over other Wheels for various reasons, the chief of which is the economical use of Water. Trials of these Wheels the past season have demonstrated the fact that they will do the same work with one-half the water required for any other Wheel used on the Penobscot River.
Second.—The amount of water rented upon the wheel is self-regulated by a device embodied in the Patent; hence, when the Saw is out of the cut, or the labor is in any way decreased, the speed of the wheel remains the same, thereby avoiding shocks to the machinery, and those break-downs which result from the sudden acceleration of speed, when a wheel does not regulate itself.
Third.—This is an anti-freezing Wheel; by a patented arrangement, that trouble in wheels run in Northern climates is avoided. This Wheel needs no "cutting out;" it never freezes.
Fourth.—It is equally well adapted to both horizontal and vertical Shafts; it is cheaper than any other wheel, and can be readily applied to any old wooden or iron shaft, without change of gearing.
5th.—By using this Wheel, a large majority of Mills can run double the time that they now do, for the reason that it can run with half the water required for any other; hence all those owning Mills on Stream where the water is limited, will see the advantage of using these Wheels.
FREEDOM, January 28th, 1867.
Messrs. Dinsmore & Close:—Gents—I have removed from my Saw Mill a Rose Water Wheel, and put in one of your Centre Vent Water Wheels of five feet diameter, made at T. N. Egery's foundry in Bangor. I am driving with it under eleven feet head a single Saw, and hang up with but one hundred and ten and a half (110½) inches of water, let on to the wheel through a spout measuring six and a half (6½) inches by seventeen (17) at the pitch; I have not let on to the wheel over one half of that amount, and I am pleased to say that I can saw more than twice as much lumber, and my saw goes much quicker and stronger than it did with the Rose Wheel, with all the water I could get on to it.
I cheerfully recommend your wheel to all who may be a want of wheels, especially upon privileges where the amount of water is limited.
Respectfully yours, ELLIOT H. BANTON.
GREENFIELD, Nov. 12th, 1866.
Messrs. Dinsmore & Close:—This is to certify that I have been using one of your seven feet Water Wheels in place of a Stearns' Wheel, removed, and after a thorough trial I am satisfied I can do the same amount of work with one quarter the amount of water, formerly used with the Stearns' Wheel.
The water is let on the wheel through a trunk 3 inches wide and 17 inches high, measuring 153 square inches of water but I do not consider that I use more than one half that amount direct from the flume. Yours, &c.
HAMPDEN, March 23d, 1867.
Messrs. Dinsmore & Close:—I have this winter removed from my mill a Tub Wheel, and put instead of it one of your seven feet wheels to drive a Double Lath Mill and Cutting-off Saw, to saw laths from round stuff.
I have seven feet head when the tide is down, and at high water in a high course of tides, the water rises four feet over the top of the wheel, thus giving only three feet head; and I am pleased to say that with the amount of back water the wheel drives all my saws fully up to speed, and gives abundance of power to do all the work the saws are capable of doing. The wheel is very perfect satisfaction, and I cheerfully recommend it to all who may be in want of wheels, especially where the supply of water is short, or where it is back water.
S. E. LEIGHTON.
BRADLEY, March 25th, 1867.
Messrs. Dinsmore & Close:—We have in our mill, at this place, a 5 feet 9 inch Wheel of your make, and we do saw with it a Double Lath Mill and Cutting-off Saw, making lath out of

The Great Enchanter.

Sleep makes us all paupers.—Bedouin Proverb.

Sleep is the poor man's warmest cloak.
His treasures so it opens
His lavish alms and turns to gold
His scanty pence.

He heals the sick man in a dream,
And sets the fettered free;
He calls the beggar from his den
To golden luxury

He crowns the hounded exile king,
Reverses Fate's decrees,
And bids the baseless Pleader rise
Judge of the Common Pleas

Sleep joins the parted lovers hands
Wreathes the starved poet's brow;
And calls the hero still unknown
From lonely village plough

Sleep holds the resurrection keys,
And from his shadowy plain
Down Memory's long and cloudy vaults
The dead come back again

Sleep comes like death alike to all—
Divine equality
Bears the monarch to his state,
The slave upon the sea

Sleep brings our childhood back again

HAZELY MILL

A STORY IN TWO CHAPTERS.

CHAPTER I.

A busy place is the old wooden mill at Hazely from the rising to the setting of the sun as the clacking wheels whirl steadily to the music of the falling waters, and the miller's man bustle in and out, and go up and down it their dusty labors

And a cheerful place is the mill when bright of day is gleaming and glistening on the rapid stream beside it, and wagons from neighboring hinges or broad faced farmer in their chase carts, come to and fro to traffic with the wealthy miller or tarry—for old acquaintance sake—on their way home from the town to discuss the rise in prices, or the latest news gathered there or to have a social chat and cup of tea, with the miller's pleasant, hospitable wife

But when night falls and work is over the spot wears, to unaccustomed eyes, a dull and solitary aspect On two sides the little river environs it closely, on the third the miller's garden and fields extend for a considerable distance and on the other the narrow highway alone separates the miller's domain from a few acres of woodland, the poor remnant of what had once been an extensive forest

Not a house is nearer than a cluster of laborer's cottages, half a mile away, and the village of Hazely in itself but one straggling street, lies still further from the solitary mill But those who once dwelt within it knew no fears For years they had found shelter and safety under its roof, even when floods from the adjacent hills roared around the very doorsteps, and isolated them for days from the dry ground beyond

Their most troublesome visitors were but a foot sore tramp whose thanks and blessings were ease given in payment for a night's lodging and a hearty meal, or—and this was but rarely—a gang of gipsies whom the prudent dame, with a view to the safety of her hen roost wants hey encamped in the vicinity, was care ul to conciliate

Besides, Abel Weston, the miller was large limbed and strong armed, and in the peaceful valley where he lived and prospered, greater crimes than the petty pilfering of saucy boys in the orchards or farm yards, were a most unknown

From the time she was a merry active child, delighted to help Mrs Weston in her garden, or peep with awe delighted eyes into the mysteries of grinding and bolting, Katie Morris, the neatest and prettiest little girl in Hazely, had been a member of the miller's household

At first she was welcomed as an amusing visitor then prided for her tender assiduities, when the dame's eyes began to fail, and her once active limbs to stiffen, and eventually, as Katie was one of a large family, whose parents could scarcely contrive to maintain them all, it was arranged that she should receive regular wages for her willing services.

From thenceforth she resided entirely with the aged couple and as she blossomed into fair womanhood, footfall and merry songs filling the house with pleasant sounds the miller and his wife grew to love their protege as dearly as if she were their own child

But her friends were not without that frequent blemish—family pride. In their great Bibby were registered generations of staunch yeoman, who had intermarried with the most reputable and ancient families in the country, and Katie, who had never heard a reproachful word from her indulgent employers, saw their brows bent upon her sternly and disapprovingly, when their nephew and heir, handsome Hugh, so far forgot himself as to linger by her side in the porch at twilight and to steal a kiss from her cheek as they parted

Abel Weston could easily separate the young people and he did so, by sending Hugh to London to see a little of the world, under the guardianship of a bustling trader, who claimed a kinship with him But would the root out the love with which Katie had inspired the lad? And if not, what was to be done?

Hugh was ardent and impetuous and if aroused by aught he deemed unjust, or even ungenerous obstinate to a degree. Against his choice what had they to urge but her poverty and her birth? They had well liked Katie, and she deserved that they should, but they never forgot that her mother was the daughter of a carter who had grown grey in their own service, or that her father! aye, here lay the greatest difficulty of all—

Abel Weston had his hobbies, as other men have; his violin, which he treasured and caressed, and played with the enthusiasm of a fanatic, and his politics

A conservative, as his sires had been before him, he staunchly upheld Church and State, and refused to believe that the party for whom he voted—whether in power or out of power—could ever do wrong And his opinion, and prejudices strenuously adhered to, and always vehemently expressed, were sometimes rehearsed at the White House at Hazely, where the wealthy miller was generally listened to with respect. But Harry Morris, the father of Katie, a journeyman carpenter in a paper cap and patched jacket, not only chose to consider himself superior to the farming man, who sat in the top, hat! who quaffed his cordial pint behind the door of the bar, but joined to the conversation carried on by the favored few admitted to a seat within it. And not content with this intrusion, he had on more than one occasion ventured to controvert some of the miller's assertions; and to argue the rights and wrongs of the working classes with all the rasperity of an irritable, but impoverished and disappointed man

This worry with his radical notions, and argument, would be permitted to blow himself with their fumes, and perhaps some his wild [illegible] Abel Weston had been [illegible] for the sake of his daughter [illegible] and the [illegible]

But without perceiving her they had gone on, and wondering a little at their haste, and the direction they were pursuing—for they were already far down a by path leading to a bleak common beyond—she went on her own way to the mill

A couple of hundred yards more, and the stile was reached, but here Katie stopped with an exclamation of surprise, for fluttering on a bramble beside it, was treasured the Indian silk handkerchief which Mrs Weston was in the habit of folding over her head as she dozed in her arm chair in the evening

Carrying it in hand, and speculating as to how it came there, she ran across the gate of the miller's garden where she expected to find him waiting her coming

But Abel Weston was not there, and the house door was closed and fastened This was unusual, for the dame, accustomed to be much in the open air, seldom sought the fire side in hours so mild as this fair spring gloaming.

Katie rapped for admittance, and the summons remaining unanswered, she stepped back to reconnoiter the chamber windows Was it later than she had imagined, and had they—now so indifferent about her retired to rest?

If so the key was hung in the porch, as it had sometimes been for Hugh, and standing on tip toe, groped for the nail It was empty, and now disposed to resent these seeming unkindness, she rattled the latch loudly and repeatedly, and then put her ear to the key hole, and listened for the coming of the miller

The ceaseless rushing of the water over the weir, and the steady ticking of the Dutch clock hanging in the nook by the dresser, alone broke the solemn stillness of the hour, for so calm was the night that even the leaves on the beech trees opposite seemed to be at rest But suddenly a low, lengthened groan followed by a choking sigh, echoed through the quiet house; and Katie, with a shriek of terror, fled from the door, and down the lane to Hazely

[Conclusion to morrow]

NOTHING TOO GOOD FOR SOLDIERS The Biddeford Union once told the following good story It is characteristic of a true hearted man, and one of the best railroad officers in the country

Quartermaster Fessenden of this city, and of the late 5th Regiment, told us a story a few days since, which is too good to be lost On their return from the war the Superintendent of the railroad at Baltimore brought out cattle cars reeking with filth, and told him that was all the transportation he could provide After much expostulation, the Quartermaster threatened to telegraph to the Secretary of War, which opened the eyes of the railroad official, and he soon found suitable cars At every change it was sought to put the regiment off with shabby accommodations, and they literally fought their way to all the conveniences which they received

They arrived in Boston too late for the first Portland train and the Quartermaster announced to Col Edwards that she should try for an extra train, at which the Colonel moodily laughed and told him that he ought to hear from past experience that it was no use to try But going to the Colonel—"You must remember that we are now among civilized people," he hurried off to Superintendent Prescott of the Eastern Railroad, told him that the boys were anxious to get home and asked him for an extra train "Certainly, sir," was the reply, "it shall be ready in two hours" He then asked what kind of cars would be furnished them, having in mind the cattle cars at Baltimore—"Tell your boys," replied Superintendent Prescott, "that the Eastern Railroad has no cars too good for soldiers to ride in" He did tell them, and the thanks of the regiment testified that neither they nor their friends would forget the courtesy and kindness of the Superintendent, or of the road that employs officers who properly represent it

NEWSPAPER REPORTERS A lawyer in the Louisville Police Court, having said some pretty hard things about the reporters of one of the daily papers in that city, the Journal takes occasion to defend the gentlemen of the press in the following sensible remarks

"In gathering news, it is, of course, impossible for a reporter to have been an eye witness of every event, and he must take the accounts that he gets from others as the truth He uses due diligence to get all the particulars, and takes it for granted that the news is correct. If his informant, either from stupidity or malice, misleads him, we respectfully suggest that it is not fair to accuse the reporter of intentionally garbling the facts in the case At the best, it is a hard position If he speaks boldly he offends some one If he speaks guardedly, some one accuses him of cowardice, or being brought up not to speak the whole truth If he is sentimental, he is called a fool If he speaks in forcible language, he is called stupid If he is witty, they accuse him of trying to show off If he is fanciful, they call him a romancist and say he is not reliable If he confines himself to a brief mention, he is accused of not having brains enough to write a good article In fact, he carries his heart upon his sleeve, for jackdaws to peck at So, gentlemen, go slow Don't add to a reporter's troubles by unjust and foolish censures

FISH IN COLD WATER Waters too salt are adverse to the fattening and the fineness of fish, probably also to their increase—weakness the pitting of oysters and mussels, the ascent of rivers by fish to deposit their spawn, and a score of other similar facts—Warm seas produce but poor fleshed fish—Maury even tells us that the fish of the sea afford, perhaps, the best indication as to the cold currents in it The Atlantic cities and towns of America owe their excellent fish markets to the stream of cold water from the north, which runs along the coast The temperature of the Mediterranean is four or five degrees above the ocean temperature of the same latitude, and the fish there are mostly indifferent. On the other hand the temperature along the American coast is several degrees below that of the ocean, and from Maine to Florida tables are supplied with the most excellent of fish The sheep's head of this cold current, so much esteemed in Virginia and the Carolinas, loses its flavor and is considered worthless when taken on the warm coral banks of the Bahamas—The same is the case with the other fish In the cold water of that coast they are delicious, in the warm water on the other edge of the Gulf Stream, their flesh is soft and unfit for the table

—[All the Year Round

A writer in a San Francisco paper, moved by a vision of journeying by railroad from New York to that city, 8,219 miles, in five days and nine hours, his least extravagant estimate, exclaims:

"Then farewell our isolation, farewell our sickness; farewell a seventeen days' basking in the scalding tropics, farewell the Isthmus and its fevers and good-for nothing, impudent populations farewell their jail-like confinement on shipboard—adieu old acquaintance, but never friends—we will bid you all a most willing farewell when the railroad is completed Then will be literally inaugurated our year of Jubilee. The subject is full of poetry, but can the poetry of words equal the poetry of facts, as seen in the rush up through these snow clad, grand old mountains of the iron horse, our literal cloud-compelling Jove and poet laureate of science and progress"

An intelligent contraband in Indianapolis, Ind., was recently directed by his employer to take the carriage and call for the young ladies of the family, who were at an evening party, and instructed to go to the door, ring the bell and inquire for them. About midnight he returned alone, and upon inquiry it was ascertained that he had taken the disappointed belles driving up the alleys to the back entrance, and had rang the bell behind some one instead of at home, he returned.
